bration of Yom Kippur yesterday. This was eansed by the ransor of the orthodox Jews against the unorthodox who did not observe requirements of the Jewish law by closing their shops and by keeping the fast day. One of the Herrich brothers, whose restauran at 141 Division street, which is frequented anorthodox Jews, the police closed on Sunday night, when the day of atonement began sause it had been stoned by the orthodox for keeping open, told Acting Captain Brown of Madison street station later that he would open the place in the morning.

"There will surely be more trouble then."

"That's true," said the Captain, "If you want to keep open you've got the right to. Go ahead and I'll see that you are protected." Early yesterday morning a sign appeared in front of the Division street place announcing that it would be open for customers, Jewish or Gentile, all day, at the usual prices. Doubtless the sign would not have lasted long but for the presence of Capt. Brown with his reserves and also the reserves from the Eldridge street station, the dividing line between the two pre cincts being Canal street, where the intersection of Division street at the point where the res taurant stands forms a triangle. At all the corners of the open space were gathered the angry erthodox Jews. Presently three young men pushed through the crowd and advanced to ward the restaurant, only to be stopped by the police, who asked them what they wanted. "Going to Herrichs", to eat," they said.

"He is an outcast, not fit to live."
"Kill the outcast!" cried a hundred voices. Turning white, the man ran for a street car. A woman whom he passed struck him sav-agely in the face and the crowd surged forward; after him and boarded the car, causing a panie among the passengers, but the police lled them off and the fugitive got away. Another customer of the restaurant was pursued into a house near by, whence he escaped over the rear fence. Meantime the police, in attending to these matters, had left the front door of the restaurant temporarily unguarded, and the mob rushed in. They overturned tables, smashed dishes and threw unguarded, and the mob rushed in. They overturned tables, smashed dishes and threw crocksty at the proprietors.

Jacob Cohen of 72 Suffolk street was sitting at a table wearing a brand-new silk hat and a suit of clothes only less new. His hat was smashed over his eyes and scalding hot; ten was poured down his neck. Three religious enthusiasts were jumping upon Jacob's prostrate form when the police cleared the place with clubs. Jacob Guenstein, 18 years old, of 25 Ludlow street, denounced Policeman Baker in a speech for interfering against orthodoxy, and when his remarks became too intemperate he was arrested. Seven other men were arrested about the same time charged with assault and rioting.

A little after noon there was another attack on the restaurant, which was beaten back by the police, and eight more prisoners were bagged. One of these was Morris Smith, a 16-year-old boy, who was accused of assault by Jacob Blank. Blank came out of the restaurant on wheel and got away before the erowd could catch him, but some of the men shouted after him:

There goes one of the outcasts, Stop him!

From the doors of an improvised synagogue on Canal street a number of Jewish boys were coming. They rushed upon Blank, threw him from his wheel, and were pummelling him when the police arrived. He pointed out young Smith as the ringleader. In Essex Market Court, however, the boy proved an allbl, and was discharged. All the other priscours were fined 55 each for disorderly conduct. duct. Many of them pleaded their religion as justification.

Religion doesn't mean interfering with others," said Magistrate Brann. "Let this be a lesson in toleration to you."

The orthodox Jews are very bitter against the Herriches and declare that they will drive the restaurant away, while the socialistic Jews declare their intention of supporting it loyally. The police think that the playe is likely to be a centre of trouble for some time to come.

likely to be a centre of trouble for some time to come.

Another Yom Kippur case which came up in Essex Market Court was that of Isaac Wolf, driver of an ice wagon, who was accused of assault by Max Firestein of 64 Pitt street. As swidence of the assault Firestein shows a long scalp wound made, he says, by Wolf's ice tongs, it appears that while Wolf was driving his lee wagon through Allen street on Sunday night Firestein stopped him and called cut:

"Btop working on the Day of Atonement and obey the law."

"Mind your own business on the Day of Atonement." retorted the other.

Firestein treed to climb into the wagon, and there was a fight, resulting in the scalp wound and the arrest. Wolf was held for examination.

Martin Borch, a tallor, of 65 Forsyth street, who came from Bussia a year ago, is a Hebrew of the orthodox belief, so, he began to fast at sundown Sunday afternoon, and yesterday walked to Central Park, it being forbidden to him to drive or ride during the day.

One of the orthodox customs is to give a coin to a deaf and dumb person or to a dumb animal, the belief being that such an act will wash away the penalties for all sins committed during the previous year, and likewise bring to the giver manifold returns of the gift. Borch wandered into the monkeyfhouse, and the first cage he came to was that of John L. bullivan, the oldest simian in the Zoo, a big fellow, who has a cage by himself because of his ugly temper.

believe, the oldest simian in the Zoo, a big fellow, who has a cage by himself because of his ugly temper.

John L. thrust his yew through the bars of his cage as the Russian walked up to the ralling, and blinked his eyes at the visitor in a muse appeal for some of the things he had been accustomed to receive from visitors.

The Russian took from his pocket the Yom Rippur coin he had intended to use to clean also coasselence and held it out to the monkey, which immediately seized it under the impression that it was a new kind of edible and quickly transferred it to his mouth.

Policeman Coughlin was, nearby and 'saw the penny going into the monkey's mouth, his arrested Borch when he saw John L. going through contortions that showed he had great difficulty in swallowing something. The animal gasped and stretched his neck and put one of his paws into his mouth, as though in pain. In about a minute he apparently succeeded in swallowing the coin and was relieved for a short time.

Soon, however, he began to press his paws on his abdomen and rolled about on the floor of his cage, evidently disturbed by the presence of the coin in his stomach.

The prisoner was taken to the Arsenal, where Sergeant Dillon sought to learn the man's motive for giving money to the animal. The prisoner could not talk English, so was taken on a charge of disorderly conduct to the Yorkville Court, where he explained through an interpreter that he gave the coin in accordance with the Yom Kippur custom. Magistrate Grane cautioned him to look up the laws of this country and discharged him.

In the meantime Superintendent Smith of the Park zoo had been informed of the conditions of one of his pets, and, going to the monkey to take to relieve the pain. The superintendent said there was nothing further he could do except to wait and see what the result of the coin swallowing would be to the Torkulle Court.

Yom Rippur, the Day of Atonement, holiest of the Jewish holy days, was celebrated from dark of Swidsh holy days, was considered by the Swidsh was about 6 c'elock. In that time thousands of orthodox Hebrews crowded the synagogues for the apscial services of the day. Not only were the regular synagogues crowded, but all over the east side hals and vecant stores were hired and tursed into synagogues in order that none of the orthodox might suffer from lack of a place wherein to perform the holy hots and to hear the blowing of the Chofar, the sacred ram's hors.

Worship, abstinence from labor and fasting were the order of the day. Late Sunday afternoon every orthodox Hebrew ate all that he could swallow of the most sustaining food precurable in preparation for the coming ordes!. At nightfull he went with his relatives to one of another of the synagogues, where he worships and interned and listened to the reading of the analysis.

MORE YOM KIPPUR RIOTING day long the prayers and readings were kept the entrances to the synagogues were full or white-faced men, women and children waiting with what patience they might for the hour when they might break their face. All eyes were strained to eath sight of the first star of evening, and as soon as it was seen and the word was given by the heads of the families there were joy and feasting throughout the Jewish quarter of the city. Restaurants, sidewalk stands and stores opened up again and there were joiliflentions in the public halls.

THE REF. JOHN LANE DIFORCED. -Re Is Married Again,

Supreme Court Justice Garretson of Brook yn has granted a decree of absolute divorce to Ads E. Lane of 183 Willoughby street from the Rev. John Lane, pastor of the First Bap tist Church at Larned, Kan, who was former ly engaged in revival work in Brooklyn and is the author of "Salvation Melodies." Mrs. Lane named as the co-respondent Kate E. Brown, to whom the defendant was married on Jan. 8 last, Mrs. Kate A. Thompson, an old friend of the Lanes, testified that she had on Jan. 8 last. Mrs. Kate A. Thompson, an old friend of the Lanes, testified that she had received several letters from the defendant. This is one of them:

"Dean Mus. Thompson: Your last letter received. Concerning Mrs. Lane all I have to say is that she deserted me nearly seven years ago, that while she vas with me she practiced deceit toward me, that she never amounted to much anyhow, and never will, and I don't care what she does or where she goes. If I live I will probably marry a younger and better woman inside of the next year. Will write you in reference to Tommy's grave next May or June. Yours I have. The defendant also wrote a letter to the plaintiff's counsel. In this he says his wife deserted him in April, 1889, and that she refused to return. He then secured a divorce from her in the Circuit Court of West Plains, married last January. In closing he says:

"I am getting along very well, doing right and trying to get others to do the same. I am happy and peaceful and hope your client is the same. I wish nothing but prosperity and joy for her."

In another letter that he wrote to Mrs. Thompson; he describes his present wife, says she has a sciendid figure and a lovely disposition, and in conclusion writes:

"I am writing this in my own comfortable home and little cottage all to ourselves. I have all the preaching I can attend to; am in much demand for revival work. I now play the banjo and mandolin-banjo. My wife is a sine Christian girl, but very womanly and devoted to me. She is ambitious to be as helpful to me in my work as possible. She is a splendid singer and we sing duets together in our meetings."

Mrs. Lane is allowed by the decree to resome her maided names and seventeer.

Mrs. Lane is allowed by the decree to resume her maiden name, Ada E. Mildberger.

MUST TELL WHY HE WON'T MARRY. Millionaire Coles Appeals from the Order

His Betrothed Obtained. The appeal of William F. Coles, a reputed millionaire, from an order made by the City Court requiring him to furnish a further bill of particulars of his charges set up in defence of an action which has been brought against him by Miss Blanche A. Burnell of Boston to recover $50,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage, was heard yesterday by the General Term of the City Court. It was in August, 1897, that these young people first met at Lake George. They soon became engaged. The wedding day was fixed for Nov. 23 last. The young woman, with her mother, came to this city to reside at the request of Mr. Coles, so that all arat the request of Mr. Coles, so that all arrangements for the welding could be completed here. Not long after Coles's return to the city he sent Miss Burnell a note saying that according to certain facts that had come to his knowledge from Boston, he had been decelved; by her, and that it was best for both that they should not mest again. Miss Burnell wrote insisting upon an explanation. He replied that, he did not wish to go into details, that their hasty engagement on so short an acquaintance was a sad mistake, and that he asked her to release him from his promise. She declined to do so, and brought suit. In answer to her complaint he charged her with having been guilty of "bad and immoral conduct."

having been guilty of "bad and immoral conduct."

Miss Burnell declared that this charge was false and mallelous. The Court directed him to furnish her with a bill of particulars as to the times and places of her alleged improper conduct, but when he did so he simply amplified his statements set up in his answer. The Court held that this was not sufficient, and that he should detail with particularity the charges that he had made against the young woman, so that she might be apprised of what to meet on the trial of the action. From this order for a further bill of particulars Mr. Coles took an appeal. The Court reserved decision.

"That's the stuff," said Quinn, and with his assistant hanging to his ankies, he leaned down, graupled the man in the water, who was clinging to the spiles, and brought him up. The assistant went away without giving his name. The resoued man was taken to the Hudson Street Hospital, where he said he was Walter O'Brien, a machinist at 658 Broadway. He had been spending Sunday on Staten Island, he said, and had come home late and lost his way. Policeman Quinn in his three and a half years of police service has hauled seventeen men not counting this one, from the river. He has a medal from the Police Board for life saving.

ACTOR DAN SULLY IN COURT.

Playwright Gaylor's Son Accuses Him of Violating the Copyright Law.

Daniel Sully, the actor, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Bomaine in Jersey Oity yesterday afternoon for examination on a charge of violating the Copyright law. The complainant is Frank Gaylor, son of the late Charles Gaylor, the playwright. Sully has been producing a play under the title of "Uncle Bob," and the complainant avers that his father copyrighted a play under the same title some time ago. The play ran all last week at the Jersey City Academy of Music. At the close of the performance on Saturday night Sully was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Burns and taken before Commissioner Romaine, who admitted him to ball to appear for examination.

Frank Gaylor testified that "Uncle Bob" was one of the plays left to him by his father's will, and that the title and play were copyrighted. It is not asserted that Bully's "Uncle Bob" is an infringement of the copyright in any respect except the title. Commissioner Romaine required Sully to furnish $250 bail to await the action of the United States Grand Jury. The ball was furnished and Sully started for Orange, where he was billed to appear last night.

SUPREME COURT'S WORK

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS TO COME BE FORE THE OCTOBER TERM.

Formulate Bales for Procedure Under the Bankruptcy Law—A Case of Interest to Creditors of Banks That Have Failed. WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.-The Supreme Cour f the United States will reassemble a fortnight hence and enter upon the work of the October portant things it will have to do will be to formulate rules for procedure under the Bank-ruptcy law, passed shortly before the adjournment of Congress in the early summer. That work was committed to the Supreme Court by the terms of the act, and until these rules shall be promulgated the lower courts are doing lit-tle or nothing in the way of executing the law. Filing of applications to be adjudged bank-rupt is about all that is being done. As the Supreme Court was in recess at the time the law was passed, nothing has been accomplished in the way of preparing the rules, and it is inevitable that some little time must elapse before they can be put into shape.

One of the cases that will come up for discussion early in the term is of particular interest and importance to creditors of failed national banks, involving, as it does, the construction of the rule for the distribution of dividends to those creditors fortunate enough to possess collateral for their debts. The present rule is held by Mr. Dawes, Comptroller of the Currency, as it was by his predecessor, Mr. J. H. Eckels, to be unfair and inequitable, and both have interested themselves in securing a re-versal, if possible, by the Supreme Court.

The controversy out of which the litigation arose was between the National Bank of Jacksonville and T. B. Merrill, receiver of the First National Bank of Palatka, The Jacksonville bank was a creditor of the Palatka bank for one class of indebtedness, consisting of sundry one class of indebtedness, consisting of sundry drafts, amounting to $6,010, and for another class of indebtedness, consisting of certificates of deposit, leans and interest, amounting to $10,093, making a total of $16,103, on July 17, 1881. The Jacksonville bank held eertain collateral to secure the indebtedness of $10,093, and collected a portion of it after the insolvency of the Palatka bank, leaving a balance due of $4,846. The receiver and Comptroller of the Currency allowed the appellee dividends on this balance and dividends on the unsecured indebtedness, but refused to allow dividends on the total indebtedness of $18,103 from the date of insolvency. The Jacksonville bank contended that the receiver should have allowed it to prove its entire claim of $16,103, and should have received pro rata dividends on the failure of the Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati, between Armstrong, receiver, and the American Exchange and Chemical banks. Judge Sage, who has just retired from the bench decided that the oreditor banks were entitled to dividends out of the assets of the falled bank only upon the balance remaining after they had disposed of the collateral held to secure their claims. But upon appeal the Oirquit Court of Appeals, consisting of Justice Brown and Judges Lurion and Taft, reversed Judge Sage and permitted the creditor banks to prove their claims without regard to the collateral held. Judge Taft, speaking for the court, asks in this opinion:

"Shall creditors of an insolvent national bank, in proving their claims, be required to allow any credit for collections from collateral made subsequent to the declared insolvency and before procof of claim?"

This question is answered in the negative, the court asying:

"The great weight of authority in England and in this country is attrontly opposed to the drafts, amounting to $6,010, and for anothe and before proof of claim?"

This question is answered in the negative, the court saying:
"The great weight of authority in England and in this country is strongly opposed to the view that a creditor with collateral shall be thereby deprived of the right to prove for his full claim against an insolvent estate."
This has since been the general rule in this country, and the case at bar was disposed of in the lower courts, upon its authority, adversely to the receiver. By direction of the Comptroller, Mr. Merrill appealed to the Supreme Court, and the Department of Justice may be asked to intervene and be heard by arrayment or brief. The objection of the Comptroller to the law as it now stands is that it works injustice to the injured creditors of a failed bank. By its operation a creditor holding security for a part of his debt, by securing dividends based upon the whole amount of the claim, might receive payment in full, while others would receive only a small proportion of their claims.

BERGMAN PLEADS FOR SCHARFER Weak from the Beating He Received, He Yet Remembers You Kippur.

A month ago Abraham Bergman, a tailor of 65 Moore street, Williamsburg, got into a dispute with John Schaefer, a neighbor, and was beaten so badly that it was feared for a while he would not recover. Schaefer was arrested and the hearing was adjourned from time to time in the Ewen Street Police Court because Bergman was unable to appear. When Magistrate Lemon called the case again yesterday, Bergman stepped up to the bar and in a weak voice said he had no desire to

An unsuccessful search to ascertain the vhereabouts of Miss Bridget Havern, a 17year-old girl, who threatened before her disappearance to end her troubles by committing suicide, was made yesterday by the Bayonne colice and the young woman's friends. Miss Havern came to this country from England about a year ago. Her only relative in America is her aunt, Mrs. Dooley, of 14 West Eighteenth street, Bayonne. On Sunday evening the street. Bayonne. On Sunday evening the young woman, who has been living at service since her arrival in Bayonne, visited her aunt and said that she was in serious trouble. Bhe received little if any consolation from Mrs. Dooley, and yesterday she called upon Mrs. Carey of 105 Raliroad avenue, Bayonne, and asked permission to stay there for a few days. When Mrs. Carey refused her request the young woman left, saying that she would drown herself. Later she was seen crying hysterically on the street, but when her friends became alarmed and sought her she had disappeared. It is believed that she has carried out her threat to end her troubles by death.

On Sunday the police discovered that nearly the whole of the house had been carried off piecemeal. The veranda columns and flooring were gone. Window casings and doors had were gone. Window casings and doors had been ripped out, and some of the clapboarding had been carried away. The Alexander avenue police captured ten boys, from 8 to 13 years of age, and arraigned them in Morrisania Court yesterday. The young prisoners were charged with malicious mischief, and some admitted taking boards and lead pipe from the house, but the parents appeared in a body and insisted that certain Italians had practically destroyed the house before the boys had anything to do with it. The boys were paroled for further examination, and the police are looking for the Italians.

M'CAULEY A PATROLMAN. Tammany Hall Detective Sergeant Reduced

Surprise was general around Police Headquarters yesterday when it was announthat, at the meeting of the board, Detective Sergeant John McCauley was reduced to the ranks and remanded to patrol duty in the Madison street precinct. McCauley has been since the time of Byrnes a prominent figure in the Detective Bureau. He was the side partner of Capt. Stephen O'Brien, who made a dime novel factory out of the Detective Bureau while at its head. At his own instigation McCauley was reduced at that time, his intention being to become a Sergeant. He was made a roundsman at Headquarters, but never succeeded in passing the examinations at a rating high enough to obtain a Sergeantoy. When McCullagh became Chief it was thought that McCauley would be reduced, and for a few days he was, but was soon made a Detective Sergeant again and assigned to Wall street, where he has been ever since. McCauley is said to be a Tammany Hall Democrat.

more men stood about and apparently enjoyed the cruel sport.

The buildog caught the kitten first, and setting its head in its mouth began to shake it. Then the terrier got one hind leg and a hip between its teeth and began to shake and pull the other way. At no time during the tug-of-war, which lasted fully five minutes, were the kitten's paws or any part of its body allowed to touch the pavement. In the meantime some of the onlockers offered to bet on the result of the struggle and cheered on the dors.

This sort of thing continued until Dr. J. W. Thomson of the Sherman House broke through the ring of spectators and angelly demanded to know who owned the dors. ing that the defendants be enjoined and re-strained from authorising a lease of the Hackett building in Long Island City to the city, that the Comptroller be enjoined and re-strained from executing such lease, and that know who owned the dogs. the ring of spectators and angrily demanded to know who owned the dogs. A thin roung man with a saffron complexion and long hair claimed the buildog.

"Pull him off!" shouted the physician. The young man select the dog by the collar and tried to get it away from the kitten, but finally gave the task up and explained to Dr. Thomson that he was not strong enough.

Just then the driver of an ice wagon came along. He jumped from his eest, got rid of the terrier with a vigorous kick and then choked the buildog until it opened its mouth and dropped its victim. By that time, however, the nine lives of the kitten had been strangled and torn out of it.

Policeman Lynch of the West Forty-seventh street station was the next parson to Join the group, and, at the request of Dr. Thomson, he arrested the owner of the buildog and took him to the station house and then to the West Fifty-fourth Street Police Court, where the physician appeared as complainant against him. The prisoner said that he was E. Ackland of 220 West Forty-fourth street.

Dr. Thomson told his story of the kitten's fate and declared that Ackland had not exerted himself much to pull his dog off.

Before the hearing was over a gorgeously dressed woman, wearing much lace and many diamonds, drove up to court in a hansom which she said was her own private carriage and appeared as a witness for the defendant.

She said that Ackland had done his beet to put a stop to the cruelty. The woman said that she was Adelaide Carleson, an actress, of 101 West Sixty-third street.

It is alleged, on information and belief, that a corrupt,conspiracy was entered into between Commissioner Rearney and Mr. Luck that the latter should compel the evacuation of the old City Hall by using the authority of his office.

In pursuance of this conspiracy, the plaintiff alleges, a complaint was made on April 12, upon which an order for certain repairs to the old City Hall was issued. The owner compiled withithis order. Then, alleges the plaintiff, Commissioner Rearney, in his official capacity, allowed the building to become fifthy and the drainage to become obstructed, whereupon another compilaint and order were made. The order, dated Aug. 29, was served on ex-Mayor Gleason instead of upon either the owner or lessee of the building. The repairs called for were all of a nature generally undertaken by the lessee rather than the owner, and by the terms of the lease of the building the city was allowed to use $1,000 a year of the rent in such rebairs as might be deemed necessary. On Sept. 14 an order to vacate the building by Sept. 20 was issued, on the ground that the building was unfit; for human habitation and contained a nuisance. The tenants, at the direction of Commissioner Rearney, are now removing to the Hackett building. is to be authorized at a rental of $7,500 a year.

Concerning this Hackett building the plaintiff alleges, on information and belief, that Mrs. Rearney owned the land on which the building stands, and had it erected early in 1996. Then she conveyed it to her husband, who gave her a mortgage on it. He, it is alleged, has been unable to make the building and his dry goods business in it pay the interest on the mortgage, wherefore the alleged conspiracy. Papers have already been served in the case by George W. Stephens of 132 Nassau street, who is the plaintiff's attorney.

RURAL FREE DELIFERY.

The Steps Necessary to Be Taken to Secur

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 .- In reply to many inquiries from all parts of the country as to what steps are necessary to be taken to secure rural free delivery the First Assistant Postmaster-General has issued a circular letter as

The first step usually is for the citizens of the district to petition through their Representative in Congress for the establishment of rurai free delivery. This pottion should set out the nature of the country, whether it is thickly or sparsely populated, the leading vocations of the people, the character of the roads, whether good or bad, and the distance which petitioner has to travel or send, under existing circumstances, to receive his mail. If the member of Congress representing that district or the United States Senator residing therein familiar with the local conditions should forward this petition to the Post Office Department with a Invocable indorsement a special agent is then sent out to lock over the ground, to map out a suitable route or routes, to select carriers for appointment, and to recommend the establishment of the service if in his judgment it can be successfully and economically carried out." the district to petition through their Represent nied the charges, and said it was a case of too much mother-in law. He said he had studied to be a missionary, and last spring, when he was invited to go abroad, his wife refused to go with him. He sold out his interest in the cooperage firm of George H. Price & Co. for $3,000, and gave his wife two checks aggregating $2,500. Owing to her actions, he says, he was compelled to give up his missionary work and go to work for $15 a week, and was unable to pay either counsel fee or alimony. He also averred that the plaintiff had fully $1,000 in bank. He said that on one occasion, when he returned home, he found that his wife had taken away nearly all the furniture, but he found pinned to the wall this note: "There is more things down cellar. Your clothes and things are here. Pay the milkman for this week." Decision was reserved.

THE MALBONE TUNNEL MILLING. John H. Feeney and Mrs. Lizzie Frank Were

The man and woman who were run over and killed on Sunday afternoon by a Brighton Beach and Coney Island train in the Malbone street tunnel were identified at the Morgue yesterday as John H. Feeney, 28 years old, of 638 Grand avenue, and Mrs. Lizzie Frank, 43 years old, of 111 Prince street. The woman was identified by Emma McKeon, her married daughter, who refused to give the police any mformation about her mother's movements on Sunday. Capt. Leavy's theory is that the couple had been drinking and were sleeping off their debauch in the tunnel when the train off their debauch in the tunnel when the train struck them. Feeney had been arraigned sev-eral times in the Flatbush Court for drunken-ness and disorderly conduct, and his mother had him sent up on one occasion. George Kassale, the engineer of the train, who was arrested after the accident, was re-leased yesterday on $2,500 bail pending the investigation of the Coroner. He says when ha first caught sight of the couple they were not more than twenty feet distant, and that it was impossible to stop the train.

SURE GURE FOR EPILEPSY

Just Read What Dr. Greene's Nervura Did in This Case.

Fits and St. Vitus' Dance Also Yield to Its Magic Power.

It is the Only Sure Cure for These Nervous Troubles.

Any physician will tell you that the nedicine which will cure Epilepsy, Hysteria, Fits and St. Vitus' Dance and nervous attacks, is truly a wonderful remody.

Dr. Greane's Nervura will cure them. Parents, therefore, whose children manifest any symptoms of such impending nervous disorders, like nervousness, irritability, moodiness, irregular appetite, headnohes, dinginess, disturbed sleep, restless aches, dinginess, disturbed aleep, restless-ness, loss of memory and interest in things, face pale, feet cold, fidgeting with fingers, twitching of eyelids, face, limbs, shoulders, or jerking of head, should at once give this specific cure, Dr. Greene's Nervura. It is perfectly harmless, being made from pure vegetable remedies, wonderful in their health restoring powers.

Miss Carrie Van Allen, Bristol, Conn., says:

"About two years ago I was taken very suddenly sick, without any apparent cause, with a fainting spell, and from that time have been subject to them, sometimes every week, often two or three a day, after which I would feel simply miserable. I would not be able to sit up, and could not rest if I lay down, and it seemed as if something would shut my breath off. I could not draw a breath without a groan, and would start so I would frighten myself and those around me. My appetite would fall and then chills would follow.

"We had often heard of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy; in fact, had known of some cases under our own observation where it had done wonders. I was so tired of medicine that the sight of a bottle and spoon was revolting to me. I said I would not take another drop of anything, but my father prevailed upon me to try one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura and see what the effects would be. I did so, and have taken five bottles and I feel like a new person. I consider myself better to-day than I have ever been in seven years."
